

THE GOLD STANDARD · BY HANNAH GOLDY

PLATEAU TROUBLESHOOTING

What to do if fat loss slows down — don't panic!

FAT LOSS PLATEAUS ARE NORMAL

- ◆ Review your calorie intake — awareness drifts over time.
- ◆ Sometimes a cheat MEAL (not a cheat day or week) can actually help reset your metabolism.
- ◆ Increase daily activity — add a morning walk into your normal routine.
- ◆ Add 1 or 2 steady-state conditioning workouts a week.
- ◆ Sleep on low or no-carb meals: make the last meal of the day just protein and veggies.
- ◆ Keep training intensity moderate to high — as your body adapts to the activity, your output needs to rise with it.
- ◆ Be patient and consistent. Small adjustments are usually enough to reset our bodies and minds.

REMEMBER — THE SCALE ISN'T THE WHOLE STORY

- ◆ Muscle weighs more than fat. If you're only judging progress by the scale, you may not have an accurate reading.
- ◆ Track multiple indicators: body weight · body measurements · progress photos · strength improvements · how clothes fit.
- ◆ Fat loss is not linear. Some weeks the scale moves fast, some weeks it doesn't. Consistency is what produces results.